Activated Carbons

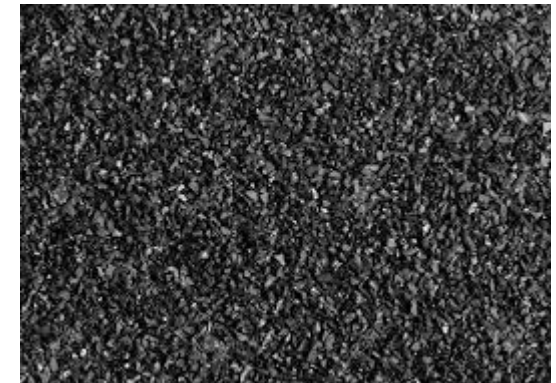

TMCarb series (iodine Value 500 to 1100) of Granular Activated Carbons (GAC) are produced from Indian Coconut shells through steam activation and acid wash. The bimodal meso and micro porosity composition of the GAC allows for the absorption of both small and larger sized impurities. These carbons are effective in the purification and decolorization of aqueous solutions in a broad range of industry applications.

Typical applications are

- Removal of volatile organic compounds such as Benzene, TCE, and PCE.
- removal of waste gases and Hydrogen Sulfide (HS)
- Impregnated activated carbon used as a bacteria inhibitor in drinking water filters
- Removal of taste and odour causing compounds such as MIB and geosmin
- Recovery of gold
- Removal of chlorine and chloramine
